Regular customer feedback has led to the introduction of a new range of booking options as well as extra functionality for our award-winning online booking tool.

When CabFind was launched in 2004 we knew that a single solution for the provision of taxis and executive services covering the whole of the UK was something that would really excite the UK business community.

On this we have been proven right and since then one of the critical factors to CabFind's runaway success has been our flexibility in dealing with each individual customer's booking and reporting requirements.

This has meant that our technology developers have been kept extremely busy. Firstly, we have increased the valuable Management Information available to business users through a range of new reporting tools.

To the online booking tool we have added new specialist booking modules such as Airport Bookings Online, and Taxi share, whilst for customers 'out in the field' we have launched our Text a Taxi service. Please see reverse for more details...

New Specialist Online Booking Modules

'Airport Bookings'

This module is geared towards the corporate traveller. When this module is activated, the address fields change to ask for the appropriate information required for an airport booking dependant on whether the passenger is flying in or out.

Search by journey

From: 15 May 2006
To: 15 June 2006

Pick Up: BBC, BBC Television Centre, Wood Lane, White
Drop Off: BBC Manchester, New Broadcasting House, Oxfo

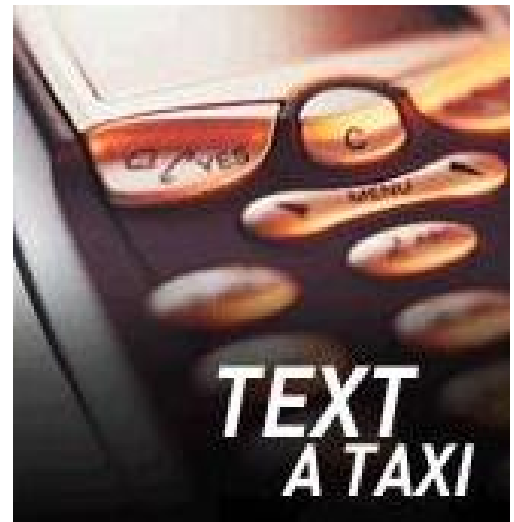

'Taxi Share'

Pre-booked journeys between two points can be identified in a journey search and passengers added if required. The journey cost is then split between each passenger's budgetary cost centre.

New TEXT A TAXI

CabFind has launched a new booking service called TEXT A TAXI that enables the business traveller to book a taxi by SMS text message – great for booking in noisy places where a telephone conversation may be difficult such as a busy airport or where the signal strength on a mobile phone may fluctuate such as a train.

Each traveller may register a mobile phone online and then set up an address book, listing a keyword such as 'home' or 'work' against each address. Then the traveller simply texts the relevant keyword, a pick-up time and the service required to our national text number. The traveller then receives a message back confirming the booking with contact details and a reference number. Very simple and extremely effective.
